

Gossip

Beneath the bright searing midday glare that fashions from each blade of grass a single shadow, two women lounge on parallel towels spread beside the inflatable pool where copper children splash and shriek: while sunning their breasts they tell only those stories neither can believe.

Originally published in Orbis
Issue #152, Summer 2010

<http://www.kudoswritingcompetitions.com/>